For far too long now, we have burdened Nature with the weight of their unending activities, it is now time to her balance before it is too do so

The topic of environmental conservation and ecological balance has gained significant traction in the past two years with growing pollution, smog, river pollution, land deforestation, wildfire leading to complete ecological imbalance. For far too long the global context in which we have been exploiting and destroying our ecosystems. Every three years the world loses enough forest to cover a football pitch and last century we have lost half of our wetlands. As 50 per cent of our coral reefs already been lost and up to 2050, even if global warming is limited to an increase of 1.5°C. This has though raised the eyebrows of people in the world yet there seems little to that has been done in the past. Maybe this is the reason why the United Nations General Assembly has declared the year 2021 through 2030 as the UN Decade of Ecosystem Restoration. Kickstarting its mission to celebrate World Environment Day today with the theme "Reimagine. Recreate. Restore." "Recreate. Reimagine. Restore." In fact, a poem penned by Sanchez to mark Environment Day 2021 spoken word piece is a call to action, "reimagine."
