Production of Specific Pathogen Free (SPF) Eggs

SPF Eggs: Specified Pathogen Free (SPF) Technology is a science of developing and maintaining a species of animals free of infection by Specified Pathogenic micro-organisms. Development of SPF Poultry breeding stock is an outcome of series of test conducted on selected layer breeders for 3 generations to confirm that the flock derived is free from vertically transmissible disease agents as indicated in European and Indian pharmacopeia.

Venky's India Ltd (SPF Eggs. Div.) is one of the few producers in this high-tech area and the 4th largest producer of SPF eggs in the world. The eggs derived from such flock are free from almost over 42 antigens or antibodies which are exclusively used for production of live vaccines for humans, animal & poultry and for research purpose.

Animal Health Products

Manufacture of medicines & Poultry feed Supplements

It has more than 35 unique products ensuring better health and better performance in breeders as well as commercial broilers and layers. AHPs are manufactured in powder as well as liquid forms in the manufacturing plant located near Pune.

Oilseed

Processing of Soya

Venky's has 3 soya processing plants. All the 3 plants are located in the State of Maharashtra (Solapur, Nanded and Srirampur). Edible oil obtained from the processing activity is sold in bulk to traders while the de-oiled cake is used in poultry feed – for captive consumption as well as sale to poultry feed manufacturers. Total capacity of all the 3 plants is 5,40,000 MT per annum.

How Venky's has successfully reduced volatility in its business portfolio

This was possible through diversification into non-volatile manufacturing activities like :

- a) Soya processing
- b) Hi-tech research based production of SPF eggs [SPF eggs are supplied to various vaccine manufacturers - both animal vaccines and human vaccines]
- c) Animal Health Products
- d) Processed chicken products
- e) Poultry Feed

For the financial year ended 31st March, 2025, the combined sales turnover of :

- a) Non-volatile or less volatile manufacturing activities was approx Rs. 1,763 cr. i.e. 55 % of the total sales turnover of the Company.
- b) The remaining 45 % of sales i.e. Rs. 1,425 cr. came from sale of broiler day old chicks, layer day old chicks, broiler hatching eggs and grown up broiler birds.

What is bird flu? Whether bird flu outbreak can happen in future and how Venky's is planning to handle such situation ?

What is the effect of bird flu outbreak on the financial performance of Venky's?

Bird flu or avian influenza is the disease of birds. In India, it is generally transmitted through migratory birds. Occurrence of bird flu in poultry is a common phenomena throughout the world.

As far as India is concerned, the organized poultry farming (including Venky's) consists of rearing of birds by providing proper housing conditions, where disinfection and cleaning of the sheds take place regularly at high standards. The birds are always reared, with very high standard practices like bio-security norms of men and material movements, high quality feed along with preventive vaccination programs to prevent viral outbreak. This clearly demarcates organized poultry sector from backyard and unorganized farming.

According to the Department of Animal Husbandry, Government of India, bird flu occurs almost every year in some parts of the country through migratory birds, which bring the infection to India from across the world. The outbreaks usually happen in winter months and subsides by February.

As far as Venky's is concerned, since its poultry operations are very well diversified i.e. spread over 11 States in India, the effect of bird flu on its operations will be minimum and any disturbance in movement of poultry products or the downward price movement will be temporary in nature, as was witnessed in the last 20 years or so. Poultry operations include various sub-segments, like layer chicks, broiler chicks, broiler hatching eggs and grown up broiler birds – collectively they contributed approx. 45 % of sales turnover for the year ended 31st March, 2025.
