Kochi Water Metro draws global attention, several nations keen to replicate model: CM Vijayan

KOCHI, OCT 11 /-- Kerala Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan on Saturday said the Kochi Water Metro has attracted global attention, with several countries expressing interest in replicating the state's innovative water transportation model. Speaking after inaugurating two new Water Metro terminals at Mattancherry and Willingdon Island, built at a total cost of Rs 30 crore, Vijayan said many Indian states have also approached Kerala to explore the possibility of adopting the model. He noted that the Water Metro, inaugurated in 2023, has in just two years increased its ridership to nearly half a crore, comprising both daily commuters and tourists.

Vijayan said the Water Metro represents a major step in strengthening the basic infrastructure of Kochi, which is also regarded as the commercial capital of Kerala. "It has turned into a source of pride for Malayalis everywhere," he said. The chief minister said that the Water Metro has helped connect several small inhabited islands around Kochi to the city and has also eased vehicular traffic within the urban area. "The Water Metro is just one of the many sectors in which Kerala has emerged as a pioneer in the country," he said, adding that the state has made significant strides in the fields of health and education.

Vijayan said the government has been making consistent efforts to ensure the development of both basic infrastructure and social welfare, urging everyone to work together for the state's progress. Following the inauguration, the chief minister travelled on the Water Metro from Mattancherry to Willingdon Island. With the launch of the two new terminals, the total number of Water Metro stations has risen to 12. Kochi Water Metro Ltd said in a release. Both terminals were constructed entirely on the water as part of efforts to conserve the heritage and natural environment of the area, while retaining the existing trees and greenery, the release added. NEW DELHI, OCT 11 /-- The chief justice of India Sanjay Khanna said on Saturday that every instance of failure to act in matters that have financial implications cannot be termed a white-collar crime. He said this while speaking at the "National Conference on White Collar Crime", organised by the Terapanth Professional Forum. "White-collar crime is a cliché which we hear every day in, day out, but very few of us really understand what is a white-collar crime. This expression was coined in 1939 by a sociologist, who described it as a non-violent offence committed by individuals of position and responsibility," Justice Khanna said. He said these crimes are committed by people in positions of trust, authority or respectability, usually for personal or organisational gain, and these are generally non-violent and economic in nature. "Yes, white-collar crimes can also lead to violence and they are then classified as red-collar crimes. Now, it will be wrong to say that every act of failure to act that has financial implications is a white-collar crime. To me, financial or monetary wrongs can be divided into three categories," the former CJI said. He said the first category includes crimes motivated by greed or advantage, such as fraud, embezzlement, insider trading, cyber crime, money laundering, intentional tax evasion, bribery and corruption.

"The second category of wrongdoings is unintentional, largely due to a lack of awareness or knowledge. It is without malicious or bad mental intent. The third category of financial crimes are technical or procedural wrongs, like not taking prior permission, filing errors, compliance oversight, which happens due to a misunderstanding of law or lack of awareness," Justice Khanna said. He said a difficulty arises when the legislature equates the first category of white-collar crimes with other categories, or a disproportionate punishment is prescribed by penalties or even a sentence of imprisonment, notwithstanding the lapse is involuntary or without the intent to gain financially or cause harm, but on account of lack of awareness or confusion.

"This morning, I read in the papers that there is active discussion going on to reduce the number of offences under the Income Tax Act. While these moves are right, at the same time, it is often the case that children are deliberately fed lesser of lower quality food than their brothers. While schemes such as the midday meal scheme, the 'anemia mukt Bharat' programme and the POSHAN abhiyan have made large strides in ensuring access to quality nutrition for young girl children, it is important that the cascading and deleterious effects of early years' malnutrition on the girl child's ability to be physically active, think and problem-solve be sufficiently publicised," she mentioned further. (PTI) right amount of tax I have to pay", and not with the question, please tell me how I can reduce or evade tax. On that day that happens, a lot of things will change," Justice Khanna said people are afraid to go to law-enforcement agencies in case of being victims of white-collar crimes because going to such government authorities is a "Herculean task" and "a source of harassment. And that fear, invariably, is used by cyber criminals to digitally arrest you or swindle you. There has to be a change in the mindset of the ordinary people when they deal with this situation. You should be able to have the courage to go to law-enforcement agencies and not fear. You should not feel that if I go to a law-enforcement agency, I will be harassed more. I would rather pay up the amount demanded by the former CJI said. (PTI)

SC judge Nagarathna expresses concern over worsening sex ratios in some states

NEW DELHI, OCT 11 /-- Supreme Court judge BV Nagarathna on Saturday expressed concern about the deteriorating sex ratios due to potential female infanticide and foeticide in certain states, stating that girls should not merely survive but thrive. She was speaking at the national annual stakeholders consultation on "Safeguarding the Girl Child: Towards a Safer and Enabling Environment for Her in India", organised by the Juvenile Justice Committee of the Supreme Court in collaboration with UNICEF India. Justice Nagarathna was speaking in the presence of Chief Justice of India BV Gavi and Annapurna Devi, Union Minister for Women and Child Development.

Justice JB Pardiwalla, member of the JJC and another apex court judge were also present on the occasion. She asserted that a young girl in India can only be considered a truly equal citizen when she can freely aspire to achieve anything her male counterpart can and receive the same quality of support and resources without facing gender-specific barriers. "Put differently, the odds of her being born at all, having access to the right nutrition, care, education and material resources, a secure and safe environment, developing a distinct sense of self and being able to achieve whatever she sets her mind to have to be equivalent to that of a boy child born in this country. She should not merely survive but actively thrive," she said. Highlighting the challenges, she noted that the first barrier a girl child in India faces is the very act of being born. It is an unfortunate reality that many families may feel disappointment or even dismay upon hearing that a child is a girl, rather than a boy. "The child sex ratio (0-6 years) in India has only seen marginal improvement, going from 914 girls per 1000 boys in the 2011 census to 929 girls per 1000 boys in the National Family Health Survey-5. There are also recent concerns of worsening sex ratios caused by likely female infanticide/foeticide in certain states," she said, adding that, however, many other states have seen improvements in their sex ratios. As the chairman of the Juvenile Justice Committee (JJC) of the Supreme Court, Justice Nagarathna emphasised the importance of nutritional care, stating that without proper nourishment, all efforts to uplift the girl child may be futile.

"It is often the case that children are deliberately fed lesser of lower quality food than their brothers. While schemes such as the midday meal scheme, the 'anemia mukt Bharat' programme and the POSHAN abhiyan have made large strides in ensuring access to quality nutrition for young girl children, it is important that the cascading and deleterious effects of early years' malnutrition on the girl child's ability to be physically active, think and problem-solve be sufficiently publicised," she mentioned further.
