Rationale

Material event

On December 11, 2025, Rama Steel Tubes Ltd. (RSTL) informed the stock exchanges that its board has approved the joint acquisition of 100% stake in UAE-based Automech Group Holding Limited for a total consideration of AED 296 million (approximately Rs. 728 crore). The acquisition will be executed through its wholly owned UAE subsidiary, RST International Trading FZE (acquiring ~78.38% for AED 232 million) and Rama Steel Tubes Ltd (acquiring ~21.62% for AED 64 million). A portion of the consideration will be settled through a share swap, involving issuance of fresh equity shares worth AED 64 million.

Impact of material event

The acquisition is expected to expand RSTL's presence in the Middle East and diversify the product-mix into relatively high-margin engineering and fabrication segments. This is expected to improve the company's revenue base and enhance earnings diversification over the medium term. However, the transaction size is sizeable relative to RSTL's current scale and is likely to be part-funded through debt. Consequently, a debt-funded component could exert pressure on the leverage and coverage metrics and thus remain a key monitorable. Additionally, execution and integration risks remain, given the cross-border nature of the deal. That said, Automech Group's historically comfortable earnings is expected to provide support to consolidated profitability and debt protection metrics.

ICRA, however, will closely monitor developments related to the transaction, including financing arrangements, regulatory approvals, and operational synergies, and will take appropriate rating action once greater visibility emerges.
