ONE YEAR IN OFFICE | President's aggressive posture follows a question on how far Washington will go to acquire Greenland

You'll find out: Trump

WASHINGTON

President Donald Trump declined to detail what lengths he will go to achieve his aim of making Greenland part of the US.

"You'll find out," Trump said in response to a question asking how far he would go to acquire the Arctic island during a nearly two-hour press briefing at the White House marking his first year in office.

Trump's aggressive pursuit of Greenland, including his threat of imposing tariffs on a raft of European countries until Greenland is handed over, rolled financial markets on Tuesday.

"We have a lot of meetings scheduled on Greenland," Trump said. "I'm lewing tonight, as you know, Davos, and we have a lot of meetings scheduled on Greenland, and I think things are going to work out pretty well."

The president repeated multiple times he had done more for Nato than anyone else, as part of suggestions he should have free rein to shape its future and what territories the US controlled. "We made it so much better, so much stronger. It's so good now. Nato is so much stronger," Trump said. "When I came here we had a weak Nato... they were a nothing Nato. Whether you like it or not, it's only as good as we are. If Nato doesn't have us, Nato is not

Dear President Trump, listen very carefully. Greenland has been part of the Danish kingdom for 800 years. It is an integrated country. It is not for sale. Let me put this in words you might understand: Mr President, f off.

Anders Vistisen, European Parliament Member

We are at a crossroads. Europe prefers dialog and solutions — but we are fully prepared to act, if necessary, with unity, urgency and determination.

Ursula von der Leyen, European Commission President

very strong."

Whether the breakup of Nato was a price he would pay to acquire Greenland, Trump said he thought whatever happened would be beneficial to the alliance. "I think that will work something out where Nato is going to be very happy and where's going to be very happy. But we need it for security purposes. We'll be able to issue at least a $2,000 dividend I don't think we would have to go to the Congress route."

and even world security, the US president said."

NOW, SC TARIFF RULING FEB 20

The US Supreme Court on Tuesday deferred ruling on the legality of Trump's global tariffs. The court, which does not usually announce in advance the rulings which will be released on a given date, did not announce the next

WILL EUROPE HEED NEWSOM'S CALL TO GROW A SPINE AGAINST 'T-REX'?

California governor Gavin Newsom's challenge to European leaders to stop succumbing to Donald Trump and start standing up to him might have been crude in some of its language, but the comment sums up the conversations that should be taking place in the continent's capitals. Trump's determination to annex Greenland, be it by force or by economic coercion, is animating European leaders like never before. But this is the moment, in Newsom's words, that they, finally "grow a backbone" and take on Trump?

date for the hearing. The SC is preparing to enter a 4-week recess, the next day for the ruling on tariffs could be February 20.

Meanwhile, Trump said, "The US economy is performing strongly because of tariffs and the proper use of tariffs. We have a 6% reduction in our trade deficit. Everyone said tariffs would cause inflation. We'll be able to issue at least a $2,000 dividend I don't think we would have to go to the Congress route."
