EU sanctions on Vadinar refinery to redirect product flows to S-E Asia, LatAm

THE IMPACT. Six-month transition period may push Rosneft to offload 49% stake in Nayara Energy

Rishi Ranjan Kala
New Delhi

Even as sanctions by the European Union (EU) create significant challenges for Vadinar refinery, the development will propel the Rosneft-backed entity to export products, particularly diesel, to South-East Asia, Latin America and Africa.

That apart, the transition period of six months, after which the 18th round of sanctions by the EU kick-in, will push Rosneft to offload its stake in Nayara Energy, which operates the Vadinar refinery.

"The recent EU sanctions against Rosneft, which owns about 49 per cent of Nayara refinery, are set to create significant challenges for Nayara as it is likely to have a pronounced impact on its jet fuel and kerosene sales, which were primarily being exported to Europe," said Abhishek Ranjan, South Asia oil research lead at S&P Global Commodity Insights. Nayara Energy's 400,000 barrels per day (b/d) Vadinar refinery has received 403,000 b/d of crude so far this year, out of which 72 per cent has been Russian-origin crude grade, according to S&P Global Commodities at Sea.

BAN ON RUSSIA

On July 18, the EU banned imports of refined products made from Russian crude oil, revised its oil price cap mechanism, and blacklisted over 100 shadow fleet tankers. The council lowered the crude oil price cap from $60 a barrel to $47.60, effective September 3, 2025.

The next cap is set at 15 per cent below the average market price for Urals and is subject to review every six months. Platts assessments show Russia's flagship crude export grade, Urals, has been mostly traded below $60 per barrel since late February and was last assessed at $58.48 on July 18. For oil product imports, the EU introduced a six-month transitional period, after which EU operators will be prohibited from purchasing, importing or transferring petroleum products obtained in a third country from Russian crude oil.

SANCTIONS SHAKE-UP

Following the EU's announcement, the Indian government said it does not subscribe to any unilateral sanctions measures.

While EU sanctions may push Nayara Energy to look toward non-EU markets, such as Africa, Latin America and South-East Asia, the private refiner can also consider supplying the displaced volumes to domestic markets, S&P Global Commodity Insights said.

Renewed price cap on Russian oil would further strain Nayara, which has been processing huge volumes of Russian-origin crude. Although Nayara sources crude from Iraq and Saudi Arabia, quickly replacing lost Russian supplies may prove challenging, though a global crude surplus might offer some relief, it added.

While Nayara has been mainly selling jet fuel to Europe recently, it has been redirecting its focus toward increasing diesel exports to Southeast Asia, Southern Africa, and the Middle East.

Nayara has also expanded its retail footprint, increasing the number of outlets from 6,570 to 6,760 over the course of a year, supporting higher domestic sales. In FY24, 82 per cent of its diesel and 65 per cent of its gasoline production were sold domestically, according to S&P Global Commodity Insights data. In 2017, Nayara, which was then called Essar Oil, closed a $12.9 billion takeover deal by Rosneft and its consortium partners.

As part of the deal, the consortium took over the 20 million tonnes per annum Vadinar refinery.

The refinery is capable of processing some of the toughest crudes and producing Euro-5 and Euro-6 grade oil products.

Patent filings in India up 32% in FY25, but commercialisation still a challenge

IP applications show strong growth

IP applications filed in India by Indian citizens

The number of patent applications filed by Indian citizens in FY25 jumped by one-third to 68,176, from 51,574 in FY24. The filings have nearly tripled from 24,326 in FY21.

DATA FOCUS.

This spike is supported by broader trends across the intellectual property (IP) landscape. Trademark applications increased to over 5.38 lakh in FY25 from 4.18 lakh in FY21. Design filings surged to 38,804 from 10,594 during the same period. Copyright applications nearly doubled to 44,066 and Geographical Indications (GI) filings also saw a sharp increase to 274 in FY25 from 57.

INNOVATION IMPETUS

"The surge is majorly on account of a conducive business environment, impetus on innovation by industry and educational institutions and government initiatives such as Make in India, Start-Up India and Digital India," said Vikram Grover, Principal, Groverlaw.

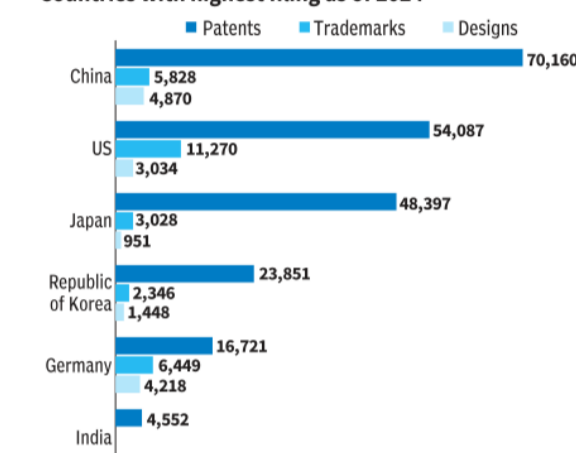

While the growth is encouraging, experts cautioned against equating it with successful commercialisation. Turning filings into market-ready products remains a work-in-progress. Commercialisation requires a more evolved ecosystem with stronger industry participation and sustained institutional support.

Advocate Yogesh Singh, Associate, Solaris Legal, highlighted that "tech-driven sectors and hubs such as Tamil Nadu and Maharashtra dominate patent filings, though Uttar Pradesh, Rajasthan and Telangana are emerging as strong players. Per-capita filings remain

He also noted a 150 per cent increase in filings by start-ups over the past five years.

DOMESTIC FILINGS

While analysing international standings, it is essential to distinguish the data sources. India's patent numbers are based on domestic filings, whereas for countries like China, the US and Japan, the figures refer to Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT) filings.

In 2024, India had 4,552 PCT filings, significantly lower than China (70,160), the US (54,087) and Japan (48,397).

Korea's No.1 biscuit snack brand Lotte Pepero is now in India

Our Bureau
Chennai

After the success of Choco Pie that was launched in 2006 in India, Lotte India, a part of Korea's major Lotte Group, is now introducing Pepero — Korea's No. 1 biscuit brand — in the country. The company feels the rising demand for Korean products in the country along with growing fan base for K-dramas, K-pop and Korean beauty, will pep up the sales of Pepero.

The company has invested

₹475 crore for capex in its Roshak plant to manufacture Pepero and to set up a warehouse facility, Milan Wah, Managing Director, Lotte India, told newsmen.

Korean snacks like Pepero will become more popular among urban, young and aspirational consumers. The chocolate-coated biscuit sticks, Lotte Pepero, will be a big hit among Gen Z and millennial consumers, he added.

TWO VARIANTS

Lotte Pepero will be available in two variants - Original and Crunchy, and in

trial packs and regular packs with price ranging from ₹20 to ₹70, he said. "What Lotte will be selling here is slightly sweeter compared to the variant sold in Korea. The company worked on the product for nearly two years keeping in mind Indian preferences - Indians generally prefer slightly sweeter snacks. This is a 'made in India' product and also marks Lotte India's entry into the biscuit snack category," he said. In future, the company will consider introducing new variants, say kulfi or coffee, to suit the local needs.

Wahi said for CY2025, Lotte India expects to report revenue of ₹2,000 crore

(confectionery will contribute ₹800 crore and ice-cream (Havmor) ₹1,200 crore). This is against ₹1,750 crore in the previous year (confectionery contributing ₹720 crore and Havmor ₹1,030 crore), he said.

In CY2027, Lotte India's revenue target ₹3,000 crore of which confectionery will contribute ₹1,250 crore and ice-cream ₹1,750 crore, he said. For Lotte India, its best selling product - Choco Pie - has a large fan club in rural Odisha.
